DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

4. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shibata et al (US 6,193,132), and further in view of Abe (US 5,803,341) or JP 6-69286.

Shibata et al disclose the apparatus for bonding comprising of a bonding tool (12), a moving mechanism for moving the bonding tool, a chip recognition camera (14) disposed to the lower level than the level of the substrate, wherein a lower surface of the chip is recognized by the camera when the lower surface is located substantially on a level with a chip bonding surface of the substrate (col. 6, lines 10-16).

Shibata et al fail to disclose an up and down mechanism to control the bonding tool and a chip tray located lower than the bonding surface of the substrate.

However, Shibata et al disclose the bonding tool to move in a horizontal direction and the stage (10) move upward for bonding. Therefore, setting only the bonding tool to both move in the horizontal and vertical direction would have been obvious, since Shibata et al explicitly discloses such movement for bonding both chip and substrate.

In addition, JP '286 and Abe disclose a bonding tool capable of moving in the vertical direction onto the substrate for the bonding the chip to the substrate.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time applicant's invention was made to provide an up and down mechanism as taught by Abe and JP '286, in Shibata et al in order to allow movement of the bonding tool only.

Furthermore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time applicant's invention was made to provide a chip tray, since the bonding tool needs to pick up the chip from a source. Therefore, having a chip tray would have been inherent to the apparatus to carry out the process.
